

Quakers: Friends of the Japanese American Community

Photo: Japanese Evacuation, Terminal Island, 1942
Lucile D. Fessenden / courtesy Arline Hobson

SATURDAY, JUNE 5 @ 2:00 pm

Japanese American National Museum
369 East First St., Little Tokyo, Los Angeles, CA 90012

During WWII, the Religious Society of Friends (also known as the Quakers), the American Friends Service Committee (AFSC), and its affiliates were among the few groups to publicly support and aid the 120,000 persons of Japanese ancestry who were forced to leave their homes on the West Coast and incarcerated in ten camps across the United States.

Join us for an event to honor and commemorate the relationship between the Quakers and the Japanese American community.

Collaborative Partners:

JAPANESE AMERICAN NATIONAL MUSEUM

American Friends Service Committee

UCLA

George and Sakaye Aratani
Professor of the Japanese
American Internment,
Redress, and Community,
Asian American Studies,
UCLA

Limited seating, please arrive early. Refreshments following program. For more information, visit www.afsc.org/losangeles